LOCATORS WIN A SUIT AGAINST ORIENTAL

Judge Mark R. Averill handed down a decision yesterday afternoon in the case of Dave Donoghue et al vs. Tonopah Oriental Mining company, arising from a disputed location, finding for the plaintiff, granting judgment as prayed for in paragraphs II and III of their complaint, including costs of suit. The facts are found as stated in the complaint.

The court in reviewing the complaint and testimony sets forth the circumstances in part as follows:

"The main question for decision in this case is such a close one that no doubt it will go to the supreme court of this state and probably to the supreme court of the United States before it is finally disposed of. The law seems clear enough, but the decisions of courts in similar cases have established rules that tend toward modification of that law and thereby add to the difficulty of decision.

"On the first day of January, 1915, two residents of Tonopah located the Homestake, Homestake No. 1, Homestake No. 2, and Homestake No. 3 mining claims on what was once known as the New York ground and including the old New York shaft somewhat west of the old high school building. There is a hint in the evidence that the ground was not then open for location, but at this point is not covered by the pleadings. It must be ignored. The claims were taken over by Murdoch C. Smith and others from whom, through A. W. Dagenhart they passed to the defendant corporation. The annual labor appears to have been done for the year 1916.

"The trouble arises from the fact that the county line passes through the group of claims almost exactly along the line between the Homestake No. 1 and the Homestake No. 2, leaving two of the claims in Nye county and two in Esmeralda. The Homestake, which is that one of the group affected by this suit, is in Nye county and upon it is the old New York shaft now used as the main shaft of the Tonopah Oriental Mining company.

"On May 8, 1919, the plaintiffs located the May No. 2 mining claims believing that the ground covered by it was then open for location. This claim also includes the old New York shaft and is in Nye county. Its locators assert that there was nothing on the ground to indicate the existence there of the Homestake though a few monuments were found of older claims. This point is of no consequence because the boundaries of a claim having once been set they need not be maintained.

"The May No. 2 is attacked by the defendants as having been without a discovery. The proof shows that
